Progress of the War.
The Mexican Congress, upon the receipt of the news of the defeat of Cerro Gordo, assembled in extraordinary session. Eighty members came together. They resolved:

1. That they were the supreme power of the nation, and would not desist from waging war against the United States, no matter what reverses their armies met with.

2. That in doing so they carried out the determined will of the People of Mexico.

3. That the Executive be authorized to defend the nationality of the Republic to the last, and to carry on the war at all hazards.

4. That the Executive be deprived of the power to make peace with the United States, or even to enter into a negotiation for it.

5. That no part of the Republic shall ever be dismembered.

6. That the Executive shall be deprived of the power of making contracts of colonization with other nations.

7. That every agreement or treaty made between the United States and Mexico shall be null and void.

8. That every person is a traitor, whether private or public, who may enter into treaties with the United States.

9. That if Congress is not able to hold its sessions, a permanent committee shall perform the duties of the Congress.

10. That the Mexican Congress, or the committee, shall appoint the Executive.

The public men and public press, indeed the whole people, openly proclaim their determination never to make peace with the United States. The sentiment prevailing in the capital was, that it was better for the Republic to be bloated out from the map of nations, than to make peace with us. The public journals declare that it is the duty of the Mexican People to see their cities sacked and destroyed, and themselves immolated, rather than talk of peace. "War to the death without pity," was the motto in every body's mouth. Guerrillas were being formed into parties with great rapidity. Snail heads one company.

Nothing had been done towards fortifying the capital up to the 21st of April.

There was a rumor at Jalapa on the 27th ult., that the British minister had offered the mediation of Great Britain to the Mexican Congress, to bring about a peace with the United States, but it was not known whether there was any ground for it.

The feeling against Santa Anna appears to be on the increase. The Mexicans have begun, in common with the Americans, to ask, how it is that President Polk permitted him to return to Mexico? They are charging him with treachery to the Mexican cause.

Gen. Worth, it was rumored at Vera Cruz, had thrown his outposts twelve miles beyond Perote, to Tepe Aqualca, to enlarge his circle of supplies, and that he had been very successful. It was also rumored that Gen. Scott had determined on leaving his rear unprotected, in consequence of his inability to keep open the communication to the sea-coast, and to throw himself for his supplies upon the enemy.

One of our wagon trains between Vera Cruz and Jalapa had already been cut off, and news of the murder of small parties of Americans was rife in Vera Cruz. The vomito had appeared in the latter city.

Nothing further had been heard of Santa Ana, except that he was at Orizaba.

On Dr. that the President seriously contemplates calling an Extra Session of the 30th Congress for two reasons: 1. That by precipitating the elections in the States which are yet to elect, he may be able to carry members enough to get the majority in the next House, as he is convinced that the House will be against him by a decisive vote, if things are permitted to go on in their regular course. 2. That if the Whigs do get a majority in the House, an extra session will enable him to throw on them the onus of carrying on the war which he will take care shall not be brought to an end during the remainder of his term.

PERTINENT QUESTION.—The New Orleans Bulletin says it is a question of profound interest for the people not only of this country but of all countries—of the whole world—with what expectations, what assurances, under what inducements, the return of Santa Anna from exile, where he could do no harm, was permitted at least, if not incited, by the President of the United States. The statesmen of Europe cannot but feel an intense desire to be initiated into the secret of this masterly stroke in policy; the citizens of this republic, whose millions upon millions are lavished on the war, have a right to know why the very soul, the animating spirit of the war on the part of Mexico was placed by their executive, in position to make the war so long and costly; the widows and children of the slain have a solemn claim to know why the shedding of so much blood was made necessary, by placing at the head of the Mexican armies the one man whose presence, whose activity, whose ample resources of every kind, have given to the war a character so difficult and an aspect so unpromising. This right, this ominous claim, must be responded to. The official editor should see to it, for the time must come.

RUMORS! RUMORS!! GENERAL SCOTT DEFEATED BY SANTA ANA!!

Our city was thrown into commotion today, about noon, by a report that a telegraphic despatch had been received from Fredericksburg, by the Government, giving the intelligence that Gen. Scott had gone to Puebla, and there, in a desperate and long fought battle with the enemy, under Santa Anna, had been beaten with a terrible loss in killed, and that he had fallen back on Jalapa, where he was surrounded by whole masses of the Mexican people; that the enemy had seized upon the road from Jalapa to Vera Cruz, and that Gen. Scott had determined to cut his way through to the sea-coast or be slain in the attempt. In a short time the rumor assumed another shape, viz: that Scott, finding his rear cut off, was fighting his way through opposing columns of the enemy with great desperation. The report went even so far as to give the number of killed on our side to be 5000, and the enemy's to be 10,000.

Our punctual correspondent at Fredericksburg had sent his telegraphic despatch at the usual hour, viz. half-past 12 o'clock—and he stated that there was no further news from the seat of war. Here it is—

TELEGRAPHIC.

Telegraphic Correspondence of the National Whig
FRIDAY EVENING, MAY 14, 1847.
No news from the seat of war.
Fulton certainly elected. Six majority, official.
T. H. L.

However, thinking that there might be some truth in the rumors abroad, we repaired to the Telegraph Office and there bought for the sum of $3.33 the Telegraphic Despatch of the Philadelphia papers, but still no confirmation of the bloody news. We give that despatch.

LATER FROM THE SEAT OF WAR.

The last Picayune contains the list of Killed and Wounded at Cerro Gordo. Aggregate—Regulars, fourteen officers wounded, thirty-nine rank and file killed, one hundred ninety-six wounded—Volunteers, one officer killed, seven wounded, three rank and file killed, forty-eight wounded. Total 243.

The Delta has a letter from the aid of Gen. Shields. He states that his recovery is almost certain. The ball entered the right breast, about two inches below the nipple, passed through the right lobe of the lungs, and out behind, without injuring him.

The Mexican officers say they have no more guns or ammunition, and that peace must speedily ensue. Sales of cotton at New Orleans 6th inst. three thousand bales, steady prices. Receipts, 300,000 less than same period last season.

Corn. White and mixed 55 to 62 cents; yellow 68 to 69 cts. Fifteen thousand bushels of wheat, 92 to 110 cts, a further decline.

Flour firm—4500 Illinois and Ohio, $6. Cleared schooner Helen Mar, Philadelphia. Official returns elect Fulton by six plurality.

Now, our readers will see, that we have spared no pains to give them the latest news, but that we have been unsuccessful in no fault of ours.

In connection with this matter, the public will get some idea of the expense of Telegraphing. It has been the enormous expense attending upon this instrument that has hitherto forbidden our resort to it, but now that the public are coming forward to our support, we shall be able to meet this and any other outlay to give latest intelligence. It is not among the impossibilities that the National Whig will have its "Overland Poney Express" too, by and by. It only needs the say so of the public to make it so.

But to return to the news and its possibilities. While we should grieve at any such reverse as here rumored, or, indeed, any reverse at all, we think it not impossible but that trouble waits our forces in Mexico. The last news from Vera Cruz does not leave the mind easy. We wait the next arrival with much impatience.

GEN. TAYLOR AT SAN LUIS POTOSI.

We have this day been shown a letter from one of the volunteers at Tampico, dated the 29th of April, which says that a Mexican just arrived from San Luis brought the information that Old Zach (God bless him!) had arrived at that city, and had taken it without resistance; and that he had continued his march to the city of Mexico. We do not believe this intelligence can possibly be true; for though he had time to reach San Luis by the 25th of April, from Monterey, where he was on the 14th of the month, the probabilities are against the supposition. The letter which we saw gave the news as though it were true; and added, "Old Rough and Ready" is the man for the Mexicans.

A truce to day to rumor, &c.

The difference between General Taylor and General Scott appears to be, that one is regarded as a citizen soldier, whilst the other is looked upon as a military man and nothing but a military man. The plain, unpretending, republican bearing of General Taylor is in perfect keeping with the simplicity of our popular institutions—hence it is that we hear him called by familiar names, such as—"Old Zack," "Rough and Ready," &c., while no one ever thinks of General Scott by any other titles than those that belong to an officer of high rank and distinguished merit. General Taylor has mingled with his fellow-citizens all his life, on the most friendly footing, while General Scott's associations have been those of etiquette. In a word, Gen. Taylor is loved as a man, whilst his rival is esteemed and respected as the head of the army of the United States; the former takes hold of the hearts, whilst the latter only touches the hands of those around him.

NOMINATION OF GENERAL TAYLOR FOR THE PRESIDENCY.

At a meeting of the Whigs in Charlotte on Monday the 3d of May (court day), Mr. Wm. B. Green was called to the chair, and Mr. Charles H. Barksdale was appointed Secretary.

The following preamble and resolutions were presented by Mr. Thomas T. Boulden, and unanimously adopted.

Whereas we, the Whigs of Charlotte, are fully impressed with the importance of acting without the intervention of caucuses or national conventions, in selecting a candidate for the Presidency the ensuing term, and believe that General Taylor combines within himself all the elements of true greatness; and whereas, we deem it fit and proper to rebuke the usurpations of the President, with the very instrument wherewith he has so faithfully sought to reap glory for himself, at the expense of the blood and treasure of the people, and of the integrity of the constitution; and whereas, we feel indignant that one in so exalted a position as the President of these U. States, honored by the confidence of his countrymen with the high trust of his country's good, should ungenerously use the power, the patronage and the influence of his station, in the ignominious effort to mar the fame of Taylor, whose track of glorious light fastens all eyes and hearts upon him;—therefore,

Resolved, That we will, with all our soul and strength support Zachary Taylor as a candidate for the Presidency and will use all just and honorable means to insure his election in November 1848.

Resolved, that the Whig papers of Richmond and Lynchburg be requested to publish these proceedings.

WM. B. GREEN, Ch'n.
C. H. BARKSDALE, Sec'y.

There, Monsieur Polk, what do you think of that? Is't it bitter?

We would suggest, that the praise of General Scott by the administration, actuated as it is by the same motive which prompted his abuse, will be as harmless to do him honor as its abuse was inefficient to do him injury.

In addition to the above line between Liverpool and Halifax, and Boston, a contract has been entered into with Her Majesty's Government, to establish a line between Liverpool and New York direct. The steam ships for this service are now being built, and early next year due notice will be given of the time when they will start. Under the new contract the steamers will sail every Saturday during eight months, and every fortnight during the other four months in the year, going alternately between Liverpool and Halifax and Boston, and between Liverpool and New York.

Correspondence of the N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

LONDON, March, 1847.

The Queen held the first drawing room of the season, at St. James's Palace, on Saturday, at 2 P. M., the 27th inst.

Through the medium of a friend we were favored with cards of admission from the Lord Chamberlain, Earl Spencer, to visit Buckingham Palace, on that day, about three quarters of an hour previous to the departure of Her Majesty in state, to St. James's.

We stood in the great hall as her Majesty passed, returning our salutation, and in such close proximity as nearly to touch her robe, thus affording us a most favorable opportunity of observation.

She is very short, with an amiable cast of countenance, strongly reminding one of the features of her royal grandfather, George III.

Her Majesty's head-dress was a wreath of ivy, intermingled with diamonds and feathers drooping from one side; the petticoat of white satin, trimmed with gold lace and ivy, and ornamented with diamonds; the train green poplin, figured with gold shamrocks, and trimmed with gold lace.

The Prince was habited in a field marshal's uniform, and wore the insignia of the orders of the Garter and the Golden Fleece, and the stars of the order of the Garter, St. Patrick, St. Andrew, and of the Bath, set in brilliant.

The Prince is much taller than the Queen, erect in his deportment, but nothing particular as to person, to distinguish him from the thousand other well-bred gentlemen of his age who wear moustaches.

The royal cortege was preceded by the Marquis of Ormonde and the Viscount Clifden, lords in waiting, Mr. Ormsby Gore and Captain Francis Seymour, grooms in waiting, Col. the Honorable Charles Gray and Col. Bouverie, equeiries in waiting.

The Prince (Alber) supported her Majesty's arm on the left; the Queen's train was supported by two pages of honor, fine handsome boys, in court costume, the sons of Lords Gordon and Forbes.

Her Majesty was immediately followed by the Duchess of Sutherland, mistress of the robes, the Marchioness of Douro, the Countess of Gainsborough and the Countess of Charlemont, ladies of the bed-chamber. These, with the attendant servants, formed the whole of the cortege from Buckingham Palace, although many other ladies of rank, as maids of honor, &c., joined her Majesty in the robing room at St. James's Palace.

The Duchess of Sutherland is by far the finest and the noblest seeming gentlewoman at the British Court; she is sister to Lord Morpeth, who travelled in the United States a few years back. At a cursory glance a stranger would imagine her Grace to be the queen as she is in fact the queen of beauty and feminine grace.

"Where'er she moves the graces hover nigh,
And seem to catch reflection from her eye."
The Duchess was magnificently attired, but I cannot describe her costume. Her Grace is one of those rare specimens of the gentler sex, where all minor objects are absorbed in the majesty of the woman.

The Marchioness of Douro is also a fine commanding woman, daughter-in-law to the Duke of Wellington. She attracted my attention particularly by the strong resemblance she bears to a lady of Jersey City.

The Annapolis (Md.) Herald, a Locofoco paper, says if Polk's renomination is out of the question, and the party cannot be concentrated upon him on account of any Northern faction of possimus, would it not be best to rebuke such factious spirits by supporting Gen. Taylor? Most undoubtedly, but whether you do or not, it will be done for you by the Whigs.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

The Old School Baptist Association is holding its annual session in the church on the Island, near 4th street. About sixty ministers are in attendance.

Mr. Bones is always making calculation. He says that twelve pavors could pave the avenue in at least thirty days, and that a quarter of a dollar a day in addition to what they received when they struck, would amount to only ninety dollars. He therefore thinks it was a small affair for Government officers to delay the work, to advertise in the papers for other hands, and, after all, not succeed in their designs!

Capt. F. A. Tucker, of the National Blues, has it is reported in the city, been tendered a commission by the Government as captain, and will open a rendezvous for recruits to-morrow.

We are happy to hear that the repairs of the Long Bridge over the Potomac have been commenced, and will be prosecuted as rapidly as circumstances will permit.

The company, for Mexico, which was raised by E. W. Robinson, has disbanded.

D. R. C. A. Van Zandt's Health Restorative Pills

is a medicine which not only cures but prevents disease, capable of great results, and equally calculated to be safely used for apparently small ones. We all know how dreadfull and dangerous a seated bilious disorder is, and we are also well aware of the seeming insignificance of its first warnings or incipency. The individual suffering from slight pains in his chest, back, or stomach, or from occasional nausea, dull headache, extreme nervousness, sleeplessness, trifling prostration of appetite, and other disagreeable visitations so commonly and foolishly looked upon as unimportant, may not know that these symptoms, treated so contemptuously, are the consequences of a diseased state of the liver, which if not remedied, will lead either to speedy death or a long train of unbearable ills which are known by the following names: Hypochondria, mania, dizziness, slow fevers, epilepsy, asthma, dropsy, rheumatism, chlorosis, convulsions, nausea, nervousness, cramps, gout, pleurisy, jaundice, irritability, and violence, dyspepsia, hysteria, scurvy, font stomach, dry coughs, glandular affections, colds, lingering sore throats, various disorganizations of the great intestine, strictures and spasmodic complaints internally, eruptions, shortness of breath, heartburn, neuralgia, vital inflammation, flatulence, gastric fevers, &c.

Sometimes, too, there ensues an irregular action of the heart. Take these pills and suffer no more.
